SUIT REVEALS HUGE FORD MOTOR PROFITS

Testimony In Couzen's Trial Shows $100 Invested In 1903 Earned More Than $50,000 In Only Ten Years

DETROIT, Jan. 11.—Staggering profits of the Ford Motor Company were revealed today in the governor's suit to collect $34,000,000 from Senator James Couzen, of Michigan, and other former stockholders of the company.

The government claims the money is due in income and profits tax from the sales of the stock to Henry Ford.

One hundred dollars invested in the Ford company at the time of its organization in 1903 earned $52,174 in ten years, Joseph E. Davies, former chairman of the federal trade commission, revealed when he opened America's

PARENTS BURY DEAD AS PROBE LAUNCHED OF MONTREAL BLAZE

Adjourn Coroner's Inquest—Theater Man Free On Bail

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—While the authorities moved forward formally today in their investigation of the causes of the disastrous fire at Laurier Palace moving picture theatre Sunday, resulting in the death of seventy-seven children, the sorrowing parents prepared to bury their dead.

Solemn requiem mass for all of the victims was to be held in the Hochelaga Roman Catholic parish church this morning. It was in this parish that the disaster occurred.

The coroner's inquest which apparently will be based upon the violation of the law which prohibits the admission of children under sixteen into a theatre unless accompanied by an adult, was adjourned until Thursday.

Meanwhile, the fire commissioners inquiry was seeking to establish the cause of the disaster. Unofficially, the cause was said to be defective wiring.

Ameen Lawand, proprietor of the picture theatre, was at liberty on $500 bail and three employees were released on $100 bail each.

The theatre managers association appropriated $10,000 to aid families of the victims. All the city's charitable organizations have pledged assistance.

HUNDRED CHINESE HELD IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Jan. 11.—More than a hundred Chinese were under arrest and held for questioning today following a night of feverish activity during which the members of the Shanghai volunteer corps, police reserves and the regular police made a thorough search throughout the city for unlicensed arms and for agitators.

The police search included all the thickly populated districts, in which shops and dwellings were entered and searched. Richshas, automobiles and pedestrians were likewise searched and all persons questioned.

URBANA HOPES FOR FEDERAL BUILDING

URBANA, O., Jan. 11.—If Congress adds another $100,000,000 to its public building appropriation as is proposed by a bill introduced in the lower house last Friday, Urbana will have a chance for a new postoffice building. Otherwise, not.

Such is the information sent by Congressman Charles Brand Friday, the day the new appropriation bill was introduced.

CONFIDENCE VOTE IS GIVEN SPEAKER

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 11.—The city council has given a vote of confidence in Tris Speaker despite the objections of some members.

"Of all the absurd things ever discussed by us, this is it," declared Councilman Peter Witt. "I don't know of anything outside of patent medicine that contains as much fraud as baseball. It has become so bad that the club owners had to employ a judicial mountebank named Landis."

LITA CHAPLIN ASKS DIVORCE

REPORTERS FAIL TO LEARN INKLING OF BASEBALL VERDICT

Silence Of Landis Adds To Suspense In Sport Drama

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—What is Commissioner K. M. Landis, the nemesis of baseball's "nether do well" going to say tomorrow to a breathless sports world, waiting for his verdict on the Risberg scandal charges?

No one but the judge knows—and he's not telling.

In fact, he is hidden away. Those who would seek to sound the secrets of the commissioner's mind by studying his features, or by associating with him, have no chance to use their talents. The judge, great dramatist that he is, has sought rendezvous in the "wings."

"Commissioner Landis is taking things easy for a brief period," explained his secretary, Leslie O. Connor, today.

Meanwhile, the suspense is doing no harm to baseball's greatest drama. It may be a bit hard on some of our best minds in baseball, but for the world at large, it is only setting the stage for a gripping, smashing climax.

The commissioner is scheduled to go on at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. At that time he has promised to render a verdict on the charges brought by Charles "Swede" Risberg, and back by Chick Gandil, two of the well known "Black Sox," that a score of baseball's famous stars, including Eddie Collins, Ray Schalk, Donie Bush, et al., conspired to throw a series of games between Detroit and Chicago, back in 1917.

Locally, the consensus of opinion among baseball players, experts and fans is that the verdict will be "not guilty."

But one must not overlook the fact that Commissioner Landis, formerly judge of the $29,000 fine fame, is making the decision. He is picturesque because of his fearlessness and his uncanny faculty of "springing" surprises.

His uncanny faculty also embraces the knack of knowing just who is telling the truth and who is being naughty.

It appeared today that there would be no probe of the newest scandal, that said to involve the St. Louis Browns and the Tigers. Ty Cobb, who was reported to have started this affair, is said to have repudiated his alleged statement that the Browns did "not" "hear down" in a certain series against Detroit in 1923.

The argument is therefore logically advanced that if there is no one to prefer charges, there certainly will be no investigation.

NEWBURGH IN GRIP OF SERIOUS FIRE

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Fire, which threatened Newburgh's business district, swept through a row of six buildings here today, and had not come under control at 10 a. m., several hours after the blaze had started. The burned buildings housed stores and families.

Scores of persons were driven to the streets, several firemen were overcome.

Apparatus was summoned from all nearby points, and from as far away as Poughkeepsie eight miles north.

After gutting the six buildings, the fire leaped to another row a block above. The fire was aided in gaining headway by a strong wind and by the fact that the city of Newburgh is built upon a hill. The blaze was visible for miles around.

U. S. GUARD KILLS NICARAGUA BOY

BLUE FIELDS, Nicaragua, Jan. 11.—The first death of a Nicaraguan, caused by American forces, was reported today. A native youth was accidentally killed by a guard from the U. S. S. Denver.

An inquiry is in progress.

The supply transport Argonne has arrived here with four hundred men.

Rumors are current here of an impending battle between the Diaz and Sacasa forces at Hama.

Orders from U. S. Admiral Latimer have been put into force making the entrance harbor of Pearl Lagoon neutral territory.

SENTENCE MOTHER

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 11.—Mrs. Susie Ann Hill, mother of ten children, prepared today to spend three months in the Canton workhouse after pleading guilty in federal court to having defrauded hundreds of men throughout the country through love letters. She is alleged to have represented herself as a young girl and solicited money on various pretexts.

J. H. NAGLEY NAMED PRESIDENT OF SOCIAL SERVICE LEAGUE HERE

Annual Election Takes Place At Meeting And Banquet—Dayton Social Worker Talks—Reports Heard

J. Harry Nagley is the new president of the Social Service League, his selection by the committee on nominations being accepted at the annual banquet and business meeting at the First Reformed Church, Monday night.

He succeeds Karl R. Babb, who has held the office two years.

Serving with Mr. Nagley as vice presidents are Dr. Ben R. McClellan, Mrs. J. B. Carruthers, Mrs. P. H. Flynn, Mrs. Emma McCallmont, Miss Carrie Hynes, Mrs. C. L. Spencer, Mrs. W. B. Chew, S. O. Hale, George C. Stokes, Judge S. C. Wright, Karl R. Babb, Dr. H. B. McElroy, Dr. W. N. Shank, Mrs. A. J. Love, Miss Faye Cavanaugh and D. D. Jones.

Dr. V. F. Brown is president emeritus of the organization.

Miss Clara K. Wright and Mrs. James Wilson III were elected secretaries and Foster Clemmer, treasurer. The Rev. J. P. Lytle, Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson and J. Carl Marshall composed the nominations committee.

The meeting marked the start of the annual membership drive of the league. Approximately 250 people met at 6 o'clock for a sumptuous banquet, served by women of the Reformed Church, in the social rooms. The business meeting was adjourned to the lecture room. After the reports of the league, Arch Mandel, secretary of the Dayton Community Chest, spoke. He declared the work of the league a vital part of the city's functions and that it needed all the support and money the people of the city can afford.

"Social work is a new name for an old practice," he said, "and it (Continued On Page 6)

FATHER AND SON SUED FOR DIVORCES

URBANA, O., Jan. 11.—J. W. and Delbert Bowen, father and son, are on the "receiving end" of separate divorce suits instituted Thursday afternoon by Attorney George Waite on behalf of the respective spouses, Jennie and Edith Bowen. In several ways the charges are similar, each wife charging periodical desertion, failure to provide, cruelty and each asks a divorce, alimony and a restraining order to prevent the secreting of property pending the trials.

Realizing that I possessed these three aldes I never have any fear of the ultimate outcome of my case.

District Attorney Keyes' statement is ample that my confidence was well grounded. He admits that the evidence against me was not worth bringing into court.

I am glad he found out before further prosecution that Mrs. Wiseman's story was false, just the same as all other attacks on me have been false.

My loyal followers and countless thousands throughout the world, believe in me and know that I have told the truth and I want to thank them for their faith in me, knowing that I would be fully cleared of all falsities.

We shall go on in the work of the Lord.

WIFE OF CELLULOID COMEDIAN CHARGES LIST OF COMPLAINTS

Asks Division Of Property, Custody Of Children

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—Charging extreme cruelty, Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin, wife of Charles Chaplin, famous film comedian, today had a divorce suit on file against her husband.

The Chaplins were married at Empalme, Sonora, Mexico, on November 25, 1924. They separated about two years later on November 30, 1926.

The separation of November 30 was precipitated by a "party" which Mrs. Chaplin gave to her friends at her home. At that time Mrs. Chaplin asserted that her husband had insulted her guests and the next day she took her two children and went to the home of her grandparents. Chaplin denied that such was the case. He did say, however, that when his wife's guests became noisy, he requested her to ask them to leave.

Under five major headings, Mrs. Chaplin asked the court to grant her the following awards in connection with her suit for divorce:

1. A "reasonable" amount of temporary alimony.
2. A division of community property.
3. "Attorney's fees."
4. That Chaplin be restrained from disposing of his property.
5. That he be forbidden to visit his children or annoy her.

Other points were brought out in addition to Chaplin, because of their connection with his business interests.

They are:

1. That Chaplin studio, the Chaplin film corporation, T. Kono, Chaplin's secretary; Alfred Reeves, his studio manager; the United Artists, several banks and a number of other corporations.
2. Mrs. Chaplin's charges of asserted cruelty constituted a formidable document of forty-two pages. The document contained, among other things, the following:

1. That her husband said he would "make her so sick of him that she would not want to live with him for long."
2. That he accused her of trying to hold him up.
3. That he charged her with being a "gold digger."
4. That she was charged with trying to "ruin" his career.
5. That he told her "marriage militated against continued success in his profession."
6. That her husband did not appear in public with her more than four or five times during their first two months of married life.
7. That she moved out of their home early in their married life on being advised to do so by her physician.

Mrs. Chaplin said her husband's actions worried her and her doctor recommended that she leave their home.

Chaplin's wife also recited incidents of alleged neglect, saying her husband would not hesitate at calling on her at Corondao.

Chaplin's fortune is estimated in the suit at $6,000,000. His salary is said to be $250,000 a year, and his income from other sources is said to be a like amount.

COOLIDGE'S MESSAGE IS EXPECTED TO INSPIRE ANSWER FROM CALLES

Opponents Of Administration Policy To Withhold Criticism Until Wednesday—House Democrats Ired By Action

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—President Coolidge's special message to congress was accepted on all sides today as constituting a blunt warning to Mexico to keep "hands off" in Nicaragua—and a warning, too, that is backed up by the presence of fifteen American warships and 5,000 marines and bluejackets in waters adjacent to Mexico.

All Washington today was looking to Mexico City for the expected "comeback" of President Calles.

No hint of the president's note, in which he virtually charged the Calles regime with promoting the Sacasa revolution, had been permitted to leak to Mexico City prior to its delivery to congress. In fact, it was so carefully guarded that most members of congress were as surprised as Calles must have been.

It is anticipated here that Calles will make a vigorous reply, setting up the contention that Mexico is solidifying administration ranks as much right to recognize Sacasa and encourage him as the United States has to recognize Diaz and encourage him. It is expected, too, that Calles will challenge the moral right of the United States to interfere with Mexican vessels in Nicaraguan waters.

Calles stands stiffly on his prerogatives that Mexico is a sovereign power, as it is expected he will, then an extremely delicate situation is automatically created—and one that may easily lead to a clash for Admiral J. L. Latimer, in charge of American forces in Nicaragua, is under orders to prevent Mexican arms reaching the revolutionists.

By common consent, opponents of the president's stand will withhold their criticisms generally until after the appearance of Secretary of State Kellogg before the senate committee on foreign relations tomorrow. Thereafter, however, it is expected to break out. The Democrats generally are of sympathy with the Coolidge policy. Moreover, some of their leaders are distinctly angry over the events of the past week.

The president invited Senator Robinson, Democrat, of Arkansas, the minority leader in the senate, and Senator Swanson, Democrat, of Virginia, the ranking Democrat on the foreign relations committee, to the White House last week and explained to them the major features of the administration's policy. He asked them to prevail upon their Democratic colleagues to withhold criticism until after Kellogg's appearance before the senate committee. Robinson and Swanson consented. Then came the message of yesterday, which was not expected. The Democrats are represented as feeling that they were unfairly "muzzled" by the action of the White House and their choler is correspondingly strong.

The Democrats in the house, however, felt themselves under no such restraint as to their utterances.

Amid Democratic applause, Representative Garrett, Democrat, Tennessee, the minority leader, caustically criticized the president's message. He demanded to know the name of one American who has been endangered in the Nicaraguan civil war.

He called particular attention to that part of the message in which President Coolidge referred to American holders of Nicaraguan bonds and inquired sarcastically if the president considers it his duty to "protect buyers of Central American bonds when they know the conditions of those countries?"

AMSTERDAM, O., Jan. 11.—Doors of the Peoples' Banking Co., here were closed today by the state banking department, and an audit was begun by Deputy State Bank Examiner E. H. Blair in an effort to learn the condition of the institution. Directors, it is said, requested State Bank Examiner to close the bank. Frozen accounts are given as the cause.

The bank is the only one in Amsterdam, a mining community, and the second Jefferson County institution to be closed by the bank department in the present winter season. The other bank closed was the Bank of Yorkville.

STUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 11.—Authorities here today sought to solve the latest murder in what is believed to be a series of black-hand activities.

The body of Nick Pellegrina, 46, was found, riddled with bullets, last night. His pockets contained considerable money, dissipating a robbery theory.

Pellegrina's name was found in a prescription book of Dr. Deigo Del fina, mysteriously murdered here two months ago. He also was held for a while about six years ago in connection with the murder of a prohibition officer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Dennis Healey, a conductor on a Third Ave. elevated train, was shot and killed early today by one of two men whom he had rebuked for pulling the emergency signal cord, stopped the train.

When Healey warned the men he would have them arrested, one of them drew a revolver and shot the conductor, killing him instantly. The men ran to the street and escaped.

POST OFFICE SHOWS BIG BUSINESS GAIN FOR FINAL QUARTER

A far greater volume of business was transacted by the Xenia Post Office during October, November and December than during the corresponding period in 1925, it is shown in the quarterly report of Postmaster C. S. Frazer.

Receipts for the final quarter of 1926 amounted to $14,883.15 of which more than $14,000 derived from the sale of stamps and stamped envelopes alone, as compared with total receipts for the last quarter in 1925 of $12,237.98. This represents a gain of $2,645.17 or about 20 per cent for the period.

Classification of receipts is made in the 1926 quarterly report as follows: Stamps and stamped paper, $14,078.62; second-class matter, $520; permits, $25.50; box rents, $95.75; and miscellaneous, $7.28.

Receipts for the last quarter in 1925 are listed as follows: Stamps, and stamped paper, $12,579.36; second-class matter, $550.70; box rent, $96.55; and miscellaneous, $11.07.

TENANT SYSTEM IN MADISON DEPLORED

"Madison County is noted for its rich farming land and natural resources," said O. A. Dobbins, Cedarville, in his address "What I Owe My Community" at the Annual Madison County Farm Bureau meeting Saturday.

Mr. Dobbins said further, that while Madison County is noted for its farms of uniformly rich soil, community progress and development is handicapped by its present system of tenancy which tended to keep the tenant poor and to force him to rob the soil to meet his obligations.

The church, the home and the schools are the factors that build up the community and that make for progress, he said. "Everyone should feel that it is his obligation to support the church, for our home, community and national life is built on the Christian Church," says Mr. Dobbins.

FORMER XENIAN IS DEAD IN NEW YORK

Ernest L. Lawrence, former Xenian, died recently at his home in New York. It has been learned. He had been in ill health for some time, the result of paralysis.

Mr. Lawrence was located in Xenia about thirty years ago, with the offices of the old Aetna Powder Co. here. Afterward the family lived in Dayton and then went East. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Ann Winch, a musician, and two sons, Meredith, by a former marriage with Miss Marie Steen, Xenia, and Mason, who lives in the East.

The Theatre

"Junk" has been junked. That is, as far as Gotham critics are concerned. You'll remember we said that the philosophy of the play written by Edwin B. Self, Daytonian, which had its premiere in Dayton, last week, should appeal to the intelligentsia and hoi-polloi of New York. Well, you can leave the intelligentsia out of it, critics say.

Judging from the "panning" New York critics gave "Junk" when it was presented at the Garrick a few days ago, we judge the play didn't go over so big. The Morning Telegraph, referring to it as "a comedy written about a central character who is a junk dealer," stated that "this fat, whimsical busybody dominated the performance." Alexander Woolcott, dramatic critic of the World, severely criticized the performance.

He said, "The tired business man, for whose pleasure so many plays have been written in seasons past, has been manifesting of late a disposition to return the compliment."

"Edwin B. Self, whose business hours are dedicated to the rubber trade out in Dayton, has been using his spare moments for some seasons past in the connection of a drama entitled 'Junk' and, still glowing from the neighborhood festivity of its premiere out in Dayton last week, this opus arrived last evening as a Theater Guild tenant at the Garrick. It is pretty bad."

"The central figure in 'Junk' is a large, wandering philosopher who chats a good deal with God and goes about doing good. In the five scenes of 'Junk' the passing player is a vagabond glimpsed of Ernest John as he lifts a mortgage from an old farm, saves an escaped convict from recapture, robs a bank to get a poor widow the money she needs for her operation, rescues the governor of the state from exposure and furthers several marriages. The role is played with immense gusto and innumerable glances toward Heaven by the massive Sydney Greenstreet."

"Then Emma Dunn has a part, too. Recently, in shaking this old head over the tendency of all our young Sidney Howards, to put mother in her place in the drama, I expressed a fear that it would be harder and harder for Miss Dunn to get a job. As if she herself saw the playwriting on the wall, Miss Dunn has now cast aside her motherly manner and cut loose as the old, drab, aforesaid-noisy, crazy, bawling Old Sal. I never did find out just how Old Sal got into the play, nor whence she came. And the dialect in which Miss Dunn played made it all the harder. It was an old blend of Camdentown and Atlanta. I decided at last that Old Sal was just a simple cockney mulatto girl. Miss Dunn's role was not important, but she made it stand out. In the final moment it stood out like a gargoyle."

"This was Ernest John's death scene in which Mr. Greenstreet was luxuriating in a well-placed chair. Ernest John was dying—tensely, ruefully and with lots of talent—when suddenly the air was split with such a scream as I had never before heard in the theater. It was emitted by Old Sal, who was going mad in a dim-lit corner of the play. The effect was blood-curdling and so startling in its effect that an unnerved audience gave way helplessly to hysteria. So poor Ernest John died last night to the accompaniment of gales of laughter. It is an artless grab-bag of a play and, as Shesgreen and Vroom, who sponsored its production here, are old hands along Broadway, incapable, I am sure, of thinking that 'Junk' would either enrich the drama or the Garrick boxoffice. I assume they produced it for some other reason—possibly just to be obliging. After the final curtain, there was some firm applause, punctuated from time to time by shrill feminine cries of 'Author, Author.' Mr. Self, who was in the audience, remained there, suspecting, perhaps, as I did, that the wild appeals that he showed himself were dictated by a morbid curiosity to see what he looked like."

BIBLE THOUGHT

SELF-PRaise.—Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger and not thine own lips. Proverbs 27: 2.

A MUCH NEEDED PRAYER.—Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Psalm 51: 10.

THE GOODNESS OF GOD.—Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for His wonderful works to the children of men. Psalm 107: 21.

SOUND STRUCTURE

The year 1926 has rolled around, and we enter 1927 with less to mar our industrial, political and economic life than at any time in our history.

Business as a whole, including every line of activity, is doing a lot more close thinking, one might say philosophical thinking, on the relationship it bears toward the public, the workers and the investors. The result is that we have the best industrial, labor and financial structure that we have ever enjoyed.

Such a condition could not be brought about by one-sided prosperity—it is the result of the greater majority of our people understanding fundamental questions affecting our local, state and national life, and sharing in the benefits resulting from a sound solution of such problems.

It is probable that no nation ever came so nearly representing the spirit of love on earth and good will toward man, as the United States does today. Such a policy has taken us much farther along the road of happiness than would fighting, discord and controversy. In addition to being morally and spiritually right, this policy has been right from a business standpoint.

Therefore, as we enter the new year, we should check up on our recent progress and endeavor to strengthen our constructive program which has brought to us such remarkable results, as a nation and as individuals.

GREAT LABOR-SAVER

In summing up the growth of the electric industry, Frank W. Smith, vice-president of the United Electric Light and Power company of New York, said that at the recent electrical exposition held in that city, 20,000 different electrical devices and appliances for the use of mankind, were displayed. They represented the output of a seven-billion-dollar industry, which employs in all its branches probably 1,000,000 people. Fifty years ago none of these devices were in use.

Thomas A. Edison has seen the growth of this industry from the beginning, and has been largely responsible for the enviable position of the United States from the standpoint of its universal use of electricity.

In commenting on the variety of electrical articles, Mr. Smith said:

"In all these displays—I do not believe there is a single exception—there is but one aim; to serve mankind."

It is a consciousness of this which makes the human picture presented by the growth of the electric industry so absorbing and so important.

A LONG LOOK AHEAD

Once a man is elected president of the United States he should no longer belong to a political party.

His party should, officially and publicly, give him up, the way a father and a mother give their son to their country in time of war, or their daughter in time of peace to enter a religious life to serve God, and by serving God, serve man.

Under such auspicious conditions, unhappily thus far a long, long way from realization, we might speak with truth of a real Father of the Republic. As it is today, we have to wait till the man is dead and buried.

"The least free of men," says Napoleon, "is the party man." As usual, the Little Corporal is correct. He certainly knew men, and he knew how to rule men.

The exertions of Mr. President to keep himself in power through party sycophancy, may be very human, but if he stepped aside and selected good men wherever found, in one party or the other—come why not?—democracy would soon enough be a power to be reckoned with, instead of a thinly disguised plutocracy.

So, what is missing in our form of government, can be quickly told. However, the answer is a long, long way in the future.

The Old Bird Sits Tight

Keeping HEALTHY
by Dr. A. F. Currier

INSANITY PREVENTION

The secretary of the New York state hospital commission, L. M. Farrington, in a recent address, referred to the great field to be developed in the near future in the prevention of mental disease and breakdown. This is to be the work of that state's new department of mental hygiene.

It was thought that the state could well afford generous expenditures for prevention work, for Dr. Currier, the compensation would come in reduced financial burden for a smaller number of admissions to hospitals for mental disease.

Farrington suggests prevention of mental breakdown by treatment of children, even with those of pre-school age, and he thought that after this program had been in effect for a generation the next generation would not be compelled to wonder at the short-sightedness and stupidity of letting things go and crowding great numbers of the mentally diseased in large institutions.

There is no doubt that the widespread movement in the furtherance of mental hygiene is a most important and salutary one, and perhaps the readers of this paper may not be aware that the movement owes its beginning and furtherance to the impressive book of Clifford Beers, "The Mind That Found Itself," published a few years ago, and to the active efforts of Mr. Beers in stirring up interest in this subject throughout this country and Europe.

While I am giving modified endorsement of the mental hygiene department, I must admit a suspicion that it may be in the direction of expecting too much fathering on the part of the state. There are two sources which should take this matter in hand before the state is called upon to interfere, the home and the school. In neither of these has it been developed as it should be.

Ask a school teacher why it is that the children under his care are unruly, destructive, wanting in consideration of others and he will tell you that it is because their home training is defective. Ask a parent why his children are so ill-mannered, thoughtless and inconsiderate of others and he will tell you that it is because they are not properly instructed at school. Each "passes the buck" to the other and the child develops into anything but a good citizen, and from want of self-control and sane and wise guidance, may be on the road to the mental breakdown which is now so very common in early adult life.

There should be great interest in this newest mental hygiene experiment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
MRS. G. B. S.: My mother, age 52, the mother of ten children, is in a very nervous condition and two doctors who have seen her say they can do nothing for her. Her trouble began six years ago while she was passing through the change of life. Her trouble seems to be that she cannot relax. Her neck, hands and arms are stiff and she cannot walk. She has no appetite and is constantly losing weight. Can you suggest anything?

Answer.—It is hard to give advice in such a case without seeing the patient, but I think I can safely suggest the daily use of a prolonged warm bath, a dose of castor oil at night, and an abundance of milk, preferably warm. Encourage sleep and let her get all the sunlight possible.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

Many Minds

SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"Thirty patients underwent sterilization operations during the past year. We have noticed much improvement in the behavior of most of these cases. We must face the fact that the nation has been poisoned by moral and mental defects and to insure the survival of the fittest we have to abrogate such defects of all power to procreate."—Dr. M. A. Parunjan, superintendent of Delaware State Hospital for the Insane.

"Mussolini is upsetting the western world and is carrying America away from the ideals of her founders."—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, famed New York rabbi.

"The wage philosophy of the American Federation of Labor has become better understood and more generally accepted. That a progressive increase in the productivity of the individual worker was inevitable and that the worker should share equitably and fairly in the benefits and profits resulting from said increase is now generally conceded. This means that it is becoming more and more understood that productivity and high wages are inseparably related—the one dependent upon the other and prosperity dependent upon both."—William Green, president of the federation.

"Prohibition is the most monstrous thing that has happened in history. To my mind a man is much better if he takes a glass of beer or two or three glasses."—Charles L. Guy, associate justice New York state supreme court.

KONDON'S CATARRHAL JELLY

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C. KELLY

DO YOU BELIEVE HALF YOU HEAR?

I have been amusing myself lately by asking people if they believe various old wives' tales, and have been mildly astonished at the number of seemingly wise folk who implicitly accept standard misinformation.

Scarcely one mother in ten, I find, would permit a cat to stay in the same room with a sleeping child, because cats make a hobby of sucking children's breath. Yet no one seems to know just how a cat could fit its mouth to a child's and accomplish so weird a purpose.

Many of my friends still believe that the moon shining on the face of a sleeping person may make him insane—a lunatic—though they never can explain why it should.

Ask yourself if you believe:

That handling toads will cause warts. (Toads themselves have warts, don't they?)

That red flannel underwear is warmer than a flannel.

That snakes live until sundown.

That whooping cough lasts until the following May?

That rats will leave an unsafe ship before anybody knows that it is unsafe. (This probably rests on the simple fact that an unsafe ship first begins to fill up with water in the lower part, where rats stay. When their quarters become too water-soaked, the rats wisely pack up and seek more modern quarters.)

Oh, yes, and who doesn't believe that a man has one less rib than a woman—due to a literal acceptance of the story that Eve was made from a rib from Adam? A trip to any medical museum containing a male and a female skeleton will prove this idea to be exaggerated.

Most people seem inclined to accept the old saying that a green Christmas means a fat graveyard—that a cold winter is more healthy than a mild one. Yet these same persons go to Florida or California hoping to escape a severe winter. Won't there be more shortage of coal among the poorer classes in a winter than in a mild one, and therefore greater likelihood of illness?

Why do we believe all these obvious untruths? Probably because it is easier to accept what we hear than to pause to think. Which recalls Bertrand Russell's remark that so-called good thinking isn't thinking at all but merely failure to weigh what we hear; while bad thinking—that is, coming to conclusions that one's neighbors may not approve—is just plain thinking.

CEDARVILLE REGISTERS WIN OVER WILBERFORCE QUINTET

In an exceptionally clean but furiously fought basketball game, Cedarville College took the measure of Wilberforce University on the latter's floor 29 to 27 Monday night. The contest had not been regularly scheduled.

It marked the third straight victory for Coach Borst's lads and the sixth win in nine starts this season. Both teams gave a remarkable exhibition of the pastime and despite the rapidity of the lay, only seven fouls were called.

Cedarville led at the half 16 to 10 and the teams were never separated by a greater margin than six points. Wilberforce led at only one point in the contest at the start of the game, but spurred in the closing minutes and threatened to snatch victory from defeat.

Close guarding by Captain Little for Cedarville and "Wu Fang" Ward for Wilberforce prevented many "close in" shots and baskets of the long-range variety predominated. Nagley was high scorer of the contest with eleven points while Redden and Carter led the Wilberforce scoring.

Wilberforce and Cedarville will meet in a return game at the new Alford Memorial gym at Cedarville February 8. Coach Borst's aggregation also has a return game with Urbana Junior College at Cedarville Saturday night. In the preceding encounter Urbana last 24 to 22. Cedarville girls, undefeated this season, will play Urbana College girls in the preliminary.

FORMER PASTOR IN CHARGE OF SERVICES

Dr. F. W. Stanton, Franklin, former pastor of First M. E. Church, Xenia, is conducting a series of special meetings at Bowersville M. E. Church, this week.

Sometime ago, Dr. Jesse Swank, superintendent of the Dayton district of the M. E. Church, appointed Dr. Stanton, district evangelist to aid pastors of the Dayton district in their work.

Dr. Stanton appeared at the First M. E. Church Tuesday afternoon for an address at the Greene County Quarterly Conference on "Personal Evangelism." He will return to Bowersville Tuesday night and the series of meetings will close next Sunday. He will go from there to West Carrollton for another series.

Aligned with his evangelistic work, Dr. Stanton is doing work for the Pocket Testament League. Dr. and Mrs. Stanton and daughter, Miss Florence, are now occupying their new home at 234 S. Front St., Franklin.

CAESARCREEK WINS DOUBLE TILT FROM SPRING VALLEY 5'S

Caesarcreek High School boys' and girls' basketball teams made a clean sweep of their games with Spring Valley on the former's floor Friday night, the boys winning 30 to 2 and the girls by a margin of 15 to 10.

It marked the third victory in as many starts for Caesarcreek girls this season. Caesar boys have lost but one game.

Heinz was high-point man in the boys' contest with fourteen markers. Hurley shot a field goal for Spring Valley's lone two points. In the girls' scramble, Lewis and T. Carle, Caesar forwards, divided scoring honors.

Caesarcreek plays Bowersville next Friday night at Caesarcreek. Lineup girls' game:

What our chemists call, "an almost perfect seal for tobacco condition"—a heavy soft-foil package with an extra outside wrapper of glassine. . . .

A COMMON-SENSE PACKAGE—AND A TOBACCO WORTHY OF ANY PIPE IN THE WORLD

INTRODUCED quietly, without advertising, without "special offers" of any kind, the steady growth of Granger Rough Cut has exceeded anything in our experience.

It had to sell itself, and it did; and therein lies clear proof of its goodness. A common-sense package, yes, and an attractive price—but it's what's inside that counts!

Quality where quality should be—in the tobacco! What's inside is just about as fragrant a piece of tobacco, as good-tasting and cool-smoking, as you and your favorite pipe are ever likely to meet!

"CHANGING YOUR TUNE"

The woman radio fan knows that wave length is determined by how fast your "permanent" grows. No longer is the man of the house the only one to monopolize the speakers and "speak easies," he dial twisters and tongue wisters are just as frequent among the members of the fairer sex.

Women are looking every day to see what they can find in their receiving sets. It's not only better to give than to receive, it's easier. Some people run a radio like an express train, without stopping at stations. They don't want the poor fish and there's no talking across the boards or kicking under them.

Bridge is hard enough to understand without having the price of flour confused with the number of trumps. People are taking their card lessons with a dash of static—no wonder it's uninteresting, with such dry batteries!

You no longer have to be a magician to pick things out of the air. The radio is keeping a lot of people in the house and no matter how far out in the country you may live, there's no cotton in your ear phones!

Nowadays when you go to the

to hear anything, they just want to know their own strength! Many a man is roundshouldered from leaning over dials, but the women should be glad to see their husband's back. We are kept in touch with the newest setting-up exercises which keep us in touch with the floor!

No longer is the radio made out of a clear box and a couple of spools. It has as bright a finish as a divorce and you can keep the spoons and fruit cake in the bottom drawer!

Nowadays you pull everything from crops to croppers over the radio. You don't have to stand on the bridge at midnight, you stand only thing that will be outside the for it. The card sharks take on north woods you have southern jazz with your fishing. Which is what might be called a "catchy" tune. You can do everything from advertising to getting married over the radio, and your wife is one station whose number you should have!

Free medical advice is given over the radio, but they ought to have to pay the audience. The first thing that we know there will be nothing left to broadcast, although the women make good relay stations!

Won't it be great when we don't have to go out to the movies, but radio. You don't have to stand on the bridge at midnight, you stand only thing that will be outside the house will be the aerial!

CAESAR BONAPARTE SMYTHE

by Milt Youngren

Little Old New York

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Forty-second street has begun to work on the next generation in the matter of Abie's Irish Rose.

A man and his wife were passing the Republic theater one afternoon last week. In the man's arms, encased in soft, brown wool, nestled an infant, not more than six months old.

"Look, baby," piped the Fond Father, "there's Abie's Irish Rose. Does baby like Abie's Irish Rose?"

For some reason the infant turned and gave way to wild, ungovernable grief.

Probably a future dramatic critic.

Once upon a time the New York magazine used to advertise the writers whose stuff was slated to appear in forthcoming numbers. Nowadays the big periodicals exploit their circulation as national advertising agencies. Their yarus are merely incidental.

When the manufacturer of "You-just-shed-tears-um" hostess pays the publisher of a magazine more for a page advertisement than the average weaver of yarns can earn in a year. It is quite natural that the literary output should begin to show indications of wilting and wobbling.

"The trouble about being a millionaire," says Judge Gary, "is not so much the accumulation of gold in dollars, as it is a matter of holding on to them after you get them."

Finley Peter Dunn phrased it differently. According to Mr. Dooley's Boswell: "The trouble about being a millionaire isn't so much getting the money together, as it is looking as if the money belonged to you, after you have it."

A genial, urbane and dapper crook sentenced to a 10-year prison term the other day was leaving court to retrace his steps across the Bridge of Sighs.

"Hey, you lost your hat and coat," Assistant District Attorney Malone called after him.

The Chooser turned and smiled brightly.

"The coat," he said affably, "is the property of Gov. Miller, of Maine. The hat belongs to some other gentleman. I obtained both by walking into the Harvard club and putting them on. Please re-turn them, won't you? They'll be dreadfully out of style by the time I have use for such things again, and then, you know, the Harvard club will still be functioning, eh, wot?"

Some months ago on a dull, rainy evening, I entered a cigar shop on Forty-second street and observed one of the clerks deeply engrossed in an entertaining looking volume. By adroit maneuvering I managed to catch a glimpse of the title. It was The Life of Christ.

Recently I re-entered the shop and found the same Clara Maduro Merchant still immersed in the book. I commenced his literary leanings and likewise his thoroughness.

"Oh, I'm reading it the second time," he said. "I think it's a great book. The Life of Christ, although," he added with a smile, "I may be prejudiced. I've always been nuts on biography!"

CORPORATION CODE FOR OHIO FOSTERED BY BAR OFFICIALS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11.—Belief that the state's revenues in the form of incorporation fees will be increased, and aversion to incorporating under Ohio laws will cease, as results of the proposed enactment of a corporation code by the Ohio legislature here this winter, was voiced today by officials of the Ohio Bar Association.

Salient features of the proposed code are:

Provides a uniform method of calling stockholders' meetings and for giving notice thereof, instead of the diversified methods now provided for in various statutes enacted at different legislative sessions.

Reduces from five to three the number of directors required.

Prohibits payment of cash dividends from a surplus obtained merely by means of a reappraisal. Provides a uniform method of increasing stock and amending a charter.

Authorizes appointment of transfer agents and registrars.

Requires a corporation to mail a profit and loss statement to any stockholders desiring it, in advance of the annual meeting.

Simplifies legal provisions relating to consolidation of corporations.

Clearly specifies what is required of foreign corporations which propose to do business in Ohio. Present Ohio laws, attorneys contend, dealing with this matter are incomplete.

Constitutes a complete statement of the law dealing with corporations not for profit. Present Ohio laws, lawyers claim are greatly deficient.

Final draft of the proposed code will be submitted for consideration at the annual mid-winter session of the state bar association at Toledo, Jan. 27, 28 and 29. If approved it will be introduced as a bill in the legislature here this winter, it was stated.

Various organizations, including the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, the Ohio Mortgage Association and the Ohio Society of Accountants, co-operated with the state bar association in drafting the proposed code.

NUMBER OF RURAL ROUTES REDUCED BY NEW POSTAL ORDER

A re-adjustment of rural routes in Greene County from the Xenia Post Office is announced by Postmaster C. S. Frazer.

Effective January 31, Rural Route No. 9, 26.4 miles in length, serving the territory on the New Jasper

Pike, will be discontinued under an order issued by the postal department, and will be absorbed by Routes, 2, 5 and 8.

This change reduces the number of rural routes in Greene County to eight where formerly ten existed. Another route was discontinued not long ago.

Under the order route No. 2 has been extended from 27.8 miles to 31.95; route No. 5, from 27.9 to 33.45 miles and route No. 8, from 27.6 to 36.5 miles. Harry M. Weber is carrier on No. 2, Alfonso Lane on No. 5 and Baldwin Allen on No. 8.

Corresponding salary increases are also supplied in the order. The territory covered by No. 9 will now be served by the three above routes, beginning February 1. John B. Wallace has been employed as a temporary carrier on route No. 9.

HONEY LOU by Beatrice Burton

© JOHNSON FEATURES INC., 1926

READ THIS FIRST:

HONEY LOU HUNTLEY is private secretary to old "GRUMPY" WALLACK, head of the Wallack Fabric Mills. Honey Lou likes everyone at the mills except JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk, who makes love to her against his will.

JACK WALLACK, who comes his father's mills to learn the business, falls in love with Honey Lou the minute he sees her. Brought up by an old-fashioned mother, Honey Lou is a mixture of flapper and clinging vine.

ANGELA ALLEN pretends to be a friend of Honey Lou and tells her not to take Jack seriously. Jack is very jealous of DR. STEVE MAYHEW, a friend of MARGRET, Honey Lou's sister.

Honey Lou's engagement to Jack is announced and plans are made for the wedding.

Jack and Honey Lou have a quiet home wedding and spend their honeymoon camping at Lake Tamay.

Honey Lou stops at the Wallack Mills office to see Ann Ludlow.

Ann tells Honey Lou why she sent for her. Honey Lou sees Joe Meadows and tells him he must marry Ann at once and he agrees to do so.

Honey Lou and Jack settle down in their own flat with Mary Delaney, the cook.

Angela tells Honey Lou she is going to have a party for her and Jack Saturday night. Honey Lou goes home and finds Jack reading poems about little houses in the country filled with love and happiness. Honey Lou decides to let Mary go in the morning, do her own work, and try to make the kind of home Jack wants.

Tim Donegal tells of the card games he and Honey Lou have together and Jack forbids Honey Lou to have Tim Donegal in their house.

Honey Lou, angered by Jack's objections to Donegal, leaves the flat for her mother's home. Margaret tells her she has no reason to be jealous of Jane Ayres, Jack's secretary, but to watch Angela. Honey Lou returns to the flat, a quarrel follows.

Honey Lou moves into the guest room and further complicates her domestic affairs by her "allent treatment" of Jack.

Honey Lou, on a motor ride with Angela and Donegal, decides to follow Jack's wishes in regard to Donegal.

The published news of Donegal's arrest in connection with the names of Angela and Honey Lou, together with Angela's duplicity, finally culminates in the separation of Jack and Honey Lou.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LXI.

The flat was silent and dark and empty when Honey Lou got home that night, after the wedding. Mrs. Huntley and Margaret had gone with Steve to hear Maria Jeritza, who was singing at the old Opera House.

With tired, lagging steps Honey Lou went into the bedroom and slipped out of her white clothes. Now that the wedding was over, she felt discouraged and hopeless. She wouldn't have another chance to see Jack again, now. There was nothing to do but go ahead with the divorce she had promised him. He had had plenty of time to beg her not to get one if he had waited too—plenty of time since the day she had tucked the little note between the bars of the lovebirds' sunny cage.

She undressed and went into the dining room to lie down on the old day bed there, where Mrs. Huntley took her daily "forty winks." Then she could hear her and Margaret when they came, and let them in. It was time for them to come, almost.

She dropped off to sleep, and was awakened by the telephone ringing at her elbow. She picked it up and put the receiver to her ear.

A woman's voice answered her. "I'm the telephone girl at the Cressage Arms," it said.

"Wait a minute—what did you say?" Honey Lou was only half awake. The Cressage Arms. The Cressage Arms. Wasn't that where Tim Donegal lived? Of course it was!

"I'm the telephone operator at the Cressage Arms," the voice repeated. "Is this Mrs. Jack Wallack?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'm speaking for Mr. Donegal," the voice went on. "He wants me to ask you to come over here, if you can. Right away."

Honey Lou thought it over quickly. Was Angela still there with Donegal? Had she been there at all? Or had she just dropped him at his door and gone straight home from the wedding? And why did Donegal want her, Honey Lou, to come to his flat at that hour of the night?

The operator's voice came again to her, this time pitched in a low key: "I think there's some friend of yours in his flat, who's been taken sick. A young lady."

"Angela!" thought Honey Lou, and just then she heard Stephen Mayhew's voice in the hall outside the door. He was bringing her mother and Margaret home.

"All right, I'll be right over!" she said into the phone, and hung the receiver back on its metal hook.

She ran to the door, and the three people in the hall stared at her as she stood before them in her slippers and lace cap and kimono.

"Listen! Don't take off your things!" she cried excitedly. "I'm going over to Timothy Donegal's flat, and you're going with me. Angela's there."

Bit by bit, they got the story from her as they flew along the dark, deserted streets in Steve's car.

"And I suppose they came straight here from the wedding," she finished when they stopped in front of the Cressage Arms, with the stone lions that guarded the glittering glass door. "But I can't imagine what made Angela sick."

"She's probably intoxicated," put in Mrs. Huntley, who had been raised on the novels of Laura Jean Libby and E. P. Roe. "The way all the young people drink these days is a caution! It's a wonder to me that half of them aren't dead with delirium tremens, or something worse."

Even Steve laughed at that. But Mrs. Huntley was right. When the four of them reached Donegal's little bachelor suite, Angela was stretched out on a couch in what seemed to be a dead faint. Her face was waxen, and when Mrs. Huntley stooped over her, to take her pulse, her wrist was damp and cold with sweat.

"What did you bring the whole family for, Honey Lou?" Donegal asked shakily. He was sitting in a long chair with his feet straight out in front of him on the ash-strewn rug. "I wanted just you to come and take Angela home. Goodness knows, I couldn't do it, in the state I'm in!" His voice was so thick that Honey Lou could hardly make out what he said.

It was three o'clock in the morning before Steve managed to get Angela sobered up by many cups of strong black coffee, and a walk up and down the street outside the Cressage Arms.

"It's the first time I ever took liquor in my life, Dr. Mayhew," she told him, as she clung to his arm, crying bitterly. "I felt so blue and unhappy all day—and that's why I did it. I guess, I never tasted a drop of liquor before in all my life."

In the darkness, Steve's lip curled. He had worked around hospitals for a good many years, and he had seen many people like Angela. "Angela! Solitary secret drinkers—and all of them denied that they ever touched alcohol!"

"I'll take you home now," he said coldly to her, "and let me give you a word of advice—you'd better let the stuff alone from now on."

"But, doctor, I never do touch it!" Angela went softly.

"That's all right; I won't argue with you," Steve told her. "But you heard what I said."

However, no one else ever heard him say a thing about the night's happenings again. He refused to talk them over with even the Huntley family, who were his good friends.

Like all doctors worthy of the name, Steve was a closed book when it came to gossiping.

The next afternoon there was news of two weddings in the paper. One of them was the story of Daisy's marriage to Sam Langdon. The other was just below, and Margaret read it aloud to her mother and Honey Lou.

"Listen, both of you!" she cried. "This is good!"

Her voice went on: "Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Angela Allen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jones Paton Allen of Summit avenue to Mr. Timothy Thomas Donegal, scion of one of our oldest and best-known families. The marriage took place in the chapel of St. Michael's church, and the young couple left at once on their honeymoon in Canada."

Mrs. Huntley sniffed. "They'd better go to Canada—where they can drink themselves into a stupor!" she said with a toss of her head. "And it's a good thing they married each other. It would have been a shame to spoil two families with them!"

Honey Lou was thoughtful. "Well, anyway, we returned good for evil, didn't we, mother?" she asked. "We got her safely out of last night's pickle—but I wonder what Jack would say if he knew she drinks."

He probably wouldn't believe it, she told herself, half way between indignation and heartbreak.
